Q2 2025 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Putnam Investments.

Market commentary

U.S. equities rose during the second quarter of 2025, despite significant volatility. In early April, the U.S. administration announced steep tariffs on nearly all imports, which led to sharp losses for U.S. equities. Stocks recovered after the administration announced a 90-day pause on certain tariffs to most countries. Equities rebounded in May, with U.S. equities posting their biggest monthly gains since November 2023.

A better-than-expected jobs report for April eased recession fears, and on May 2, the U.S. equities market marked its longest winning streak in over 20 years. The U.S. Federal Reserve Board kept interest rates unchanged for a third consecutive meeting. Stocks continued their rebound through the close of the quarter, when U.S. equity markets reached record highs.

Performance

The Fund's underweight exposure to UnitedHealth Group Inc. and Apple Inc. and overweight exposure to DoorDash Inc. was positive for performance. Underweight exposure to NVIDIA Corp., Microsoft Corp. and Broadcom Inc. was negative for the Fund's performance.

At the sector level, stock selection was positive for the Fund's performance, as was exposure to health care and consumer discretionary. Sector allocation was negative for the Fund's performance, with exposure to information technology and industrials weighing on results.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor added holdings in Philip Morris International Inc. and RTX Corp. to the Fund and increased existing holdings in Amazon.com Inc. and Netflix Inc. Holdings in NVIDIA and The Coca-Cola Co. were reduced.

Outlook

Higher volatility and major market corrections should be favourable to the Fund's risk-adjusted performance compared with the benchmark. A high interest rate environment is likely to weigh on the performance of portfolios that tend to favour interest rate sensitive sectors. Therefore, the sub-advisor's sector-neutral approach could outperform in this environment.
