Q4 2025 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by JPMorgan Asset Management (Canada) Inc..

Market commentary

U.S. large- and mid-capitalization stocks rose during the fourth quarter of 2025, supported by solid earnings, economic growth and cooling inflation. Strong third-quarter 2025 gross domestic product and business investment provided a foundation for market gains, while healthy high-end consumer spending added support. However, concerns over tariff changes, a slowing labour market, and speculation around U.S. Federal Reserve Board interest rate decisions led to several market pullbacks. Warnings of an artificial intelligence “bubble” and affordability pressures for lower-end consumers added to investor caution. Despite these challenges, volatility remained contained.

Performance

The Fund’s relative exposures to Advanced Micro Devices Inc., Oracle Corp. and Eli Lilly and Co. contributed to performance. Relative exposures to Micron Technology Inc., Lam Research Corp. and Alphabet Inc. detracted from the Fund’s performance.

At a sector level, stock selection in the utilities, health care and financials sectors contributed to the Fund’s performance. Stock selection in the consumer discretionary, information technology and industrials sectors detracted from performance.

Portfolio activity

The sub-advisor made small adjustments to individual holdings, seeking to align the Fund’s characteristics with those of the Russell 1000 Index. The sub-advisor also sought to provide a reduction in carbon intensity compared to the Russell 1000 Index.

Outlook

The sub-advisor seeks to reduce the Fund’s carbon intensity compared to the benchmark.
